

VOLUNTEER

WITH EQUIDUCT

By Mackenzie Myers - Member of Equiduct's PR and Expansion Team

Being a part of Equiduct means showing up for students in a way that truly matters and helping them feel less overwhelmed with school and more confident. Sometimes, all it takes is explaining one concept or just being there, and you can see a shift in how they feel, and that's what makes it so rewarding. Mia Milacic who is a Mt. Hope volunteer, explains that "You really see how much even a little bit of help can change a student's confidence. It's not just about school, it's about how they start to believe in themselves."

What really makes Equiduct stand out is the community. Everyone involved shares the same goal: helping students succeed however we can. Whether you're tutoring, mentoring, or helping out at events, you're surrounded by people who genuinely care and want to make a difference. Mia highlights this too, saying, "The people you meet through Equiduct all care about the same thing, making a real impact. It makes you want to keep coming back."

The impact goes beyond academics. Equiduct gives students a space to relax, ask questions, and grow, not just in their grades, but in their mindset. Being a volunteer, you feel that impact too. "It's one of the most rewarding things I've done," Mia shares. "You leave knowing you helped someone, and that feeling sticks with you."

If you're thinking about getting involved, do it. It doesn't take much to make a difference, but it means everything to the students.
